Some (such as sports, games, drills, climbing, hiking, swimming, or running), present a risk of injury higher than that which people normally face in their everyday lives. This risk of injury cannot be wholly relieved by any preventive measures, whether restrictive rules, training, equipment or personal discipline. The decision whether to engage in any particular activity that forms part of the overall program shall be entirely the participant's. Participation in the program in no way obligates anyone to engage in any activity they do not feel they can accomplish.

This release applies whether the alleged injuries or damages arise from the negligence of any of the parties released in the previous sentence or not, to the fullest extent allowed by law.
4. To the fullest extent allowed by law, I, for myself and/or my minor child, and for any of our respective heirs, assigns, personal representatives and next of kin, hereby agree to indemnify and hold harmless all the parties released in Article 3 hereof from and against any and all liabilities arising from my participation in the JCPR Program. This undertaking to provide indemnity shall apply to the fullest extent allowed by law, even if the liability asserted against any of the indemnified parties arises wholly or partially from that party's negligence.

Concussion Information Sheet

A concussion is a brain injury and all brain injuries are serious. They are caused by a bump, blow, or jolt to the head, or by a blow to another part of the body with the force transmitted to the head. They can range from mild to severe and can disrupt the way the brain normally works. Even though most concussions are mild, all concussions are potentially serious and may result in complications including prolonged brain damage and death if not recognized and managed properly. In other words, even a “ding” or a bump on the head can be serious.

You can't see a concussion and most sports concussions occur without loss of consciousness. What can happen if my child keeps on playing with a concussion or returns too soon?

Concussion Information Sheet

Athletes with the signs and symptoms of concussion should be removed from play immediately. Continuing to play with the signs and symptoms of a concussion leaves the young athlete especially vulnerable to greater injury. There is an increased risk of significant damage from a concussion for a period of time after that concussion occurs, particularly if the athlete suffers another concussion before completely recovering from the first one. This can lead to prolonged recovery, or even to severe brain swelling (second impact syndrome) with devastating and even fatal consequences. It is well known that adolescent or teenage athlete will often under report symptoms of injuries. And concussions are no different. As a result, education of administrators, Coaches, parents and students is the key for student-athlete's safety.

If you think your child has suffered a concussion

Any athlete even suspected of suffering a concussion should be removed from the game or practice immediately. No athlete may return to activity after an apparent head injury or concussion, regardless of how mild it seems or how quickly symptoms clear, without medical clearance. Close observation of the athlete should continue for several hours. The new "Zackery Lystedt Law" in Washington now requires the consistent and uniform implementation of long and well-established return to play concussion guidelines that have been recommended for several years:

"a youth athlete who is suspected of sustaining a concussion or head injury in a practice or game shall be removed from competition at that time"

"...may not return to play until the athlete is evaluated by a licensed health care provider trained in the evaluation and management of concussion and received written clearance to return to play from that health care provider".

You should also inform your child's coach if you think that your child may have a concussion Remember its better to miss one game than miss the whole season. And when in doubt, the athlete sits out.
